

»TITANS IN THE PROS

In the 25-year history of Cal State Fullerton softball, eight former Titans have gone on to greener pastures and played professionally in the United States in the Women's Professional Softball League (later renamed National Pro Fastpitch in 2003).

Last season, the Titans were represented professionally by former All-Americans Gina Oaks and Jodie Cox. Oaks was a member of the championship-winning New York/New Jersey Juggernaut while Cox was the workhorse in the circle for the California Sunbirds.

Three more Titans were signed to contracts, but did not compete in the pro league: Brenda Iglesias (1998-01) was selected in the December, 2000, draft before the league suspended play in order to explore the possibilities for expansion. Yasmin Mossadeghi (1999-02) and Monica Lucatero (1999-02) signed free agent contracts to play for the Colorado Altitude in 2003, but the team suspended operations and did not compete.

The 2005 season will see three Titans on the diamonds in the pro league as Cox moves back East to compete for the Juggernaut, Oaks joins the expansion Chicago Bandits, and Julie Watson is on the roster of the Texas Thunder.
